

[Redacted]

Sent: Saturday, December 4, 2021 12:21 PM

[Redacted]

Hi [Redacted]

[Redacted]

I was connected to your site upon doing some research about a medical professional who is a long time devout and active Christian, yet PRIVATAELY confesses to struggling with lust issues when examining female patients. I have done some counseling with him and have discovered during my research including contacting and informally interviewing a small handful of reluctant doctors, that although the subject is taboo and NOT readily or publicly discussed or admitted to, this is a much more common issue among doctors, nurses, and physical therapists than most women are led to believe. Like one of your internet posts, he says "I try to be a professional, but I am still a man – and my hormonal response is very visual and the touch, even with gloves on is also stimulating." He is consistently aroused during exams even when a nurse is present. Frankly, he says that he frequently fantasizes about his patients (young and old, fat, or fit) when he is intimate with is wife.

[Redacted]

[REDACTED] I am very disturbed by the insensitivity of the hospitals to this concern, and it literally makes my stomach churn and gives me cardiac stress to thing of this horrible violation.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Pastor
[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]